

Four Sided Television

Innovator: Master Bappi Roy, Bankura District, West Bengal

- In most of the meetings in rural areas, people prefer to sit in a circle so that they can look at each other and at the same time, enjoy a bonfire in the winter or a folk theatre performance.
- At present, all modes of visual communication require people to sit behind each other and face other persons' backs.
- The innovator has come up with idea of developing a four-sided television, which would make it possible for people to sit in a circle and watch the programme, while having frontal view of each other

□ It is at idea stage, design and development of prototype may be undertaken
